

Study programme: Applied Security
WRITING PhD THESIS
Lecturer: mentor
Course status: Required
ECTS: 20
Requirement: /
Course aims
Acquiring theoretical and practical knowledge and skills on the method, structure and form of writing scientific papers after surveys carried out in the context of previous activities in the study program. Writing a dissertation is a creative work in which problems, goals, methods and methods of research need to be described, as well as analyzing the obtained results and assessing the expected scientific contribution and the possibility of applying results in practice.
Course outcomes
The PhD thesis is the original independent work of candidates in a selected scientific field. Training students to write scientific-professional papers as the ultimate product of a systematic approach in solving a specific problem. The acquired experience in the writing of the dissertation is applied in practice by practitioners in solving problems from the narrower scientific field and point to the fact that the dissertation contributes to the development of the selected narrower scientific field in the study program.
Course content
On the methodological side, the structure is defined by the applied methodology in the study of the given scientific field. The content of the course is formulated by the individual requirements of the subject of research and the wishes and possibilities of the PhD student. The student draws up the PhD thesis in accordance with the positive legal regulations in the field of higher education.
Literature:
<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Internationally recognized journals (on SCI list and / or KoBSON list). 2. Earlier defended PhD thesis in the given field. 3. Gosling, Patricia, Noordam, Lambertus D: Mastering Your PhD, Springer, 2011.
Number of active teaching classes:	Number of active teaching classes:	Number of active teaching classes:
Teaching methods
Mentor directs student during writing at consultations to certain literature and practice regarding the content and the form of the PhD thesis. In the PhD thesis writing, the PhD student uses the relevant methods of scientific research work, analysis, conclusion and presentation of research results.
Knowledge assessment (max score 100)
Preparation of the doctoral dissertation - 100 points		